

MANIAC, UNBOUND BY HIS FATHER, SHOOTS HIM DEAD

New York Physician Killed
By Son in Fit of Madness.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Robert Gorse, the twenty-four-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles A. Gorse, went insane yesterday at his father's home on a large farm near Meadowbrook, Orange county, N. Y., and three physicians who came suggested that he be committed to the Middletown Asylum. County Judge Becker came from Newburgh, and young Gorse was formally committed to the asylum, where he was to have been taken in the afternoon. While the physicians were examining Gorse, an athletic, muscular chap, he became violent. Farm hands bound him hand and foot.

Then suddenly his reason returned. He begged to be released, saying that he had been driven crazy by a fever, but his mother said that the bonds must not be taken off until he was safe in the asylum.

Father Cuts Rope.
Gorse's elder brother, Charles, and his sister, Mrs. Lotta, agreed with their mother that it would be dangerous to release Robert, but Dr. Gorse, a man close to seventy, favored freeing him, and pleaded for him.

The physician was not allowed to release his son. In the afternoon Charles, his mother, and Mrs. Lotta left the house. While they were gone Dr. Gorse cut the ropes that bound his son and Robert apparently went to sleep.

Hardly had Dr. Gorse left his son's room when Robert leaped from a window and ran to the home of William Kennedy. He climbed into the house by a window and, finding a shotgun, leaped out with it.

Gorse sneaked toward his father's home, and went to the office. Dr. Gorse was heading over a table when his son entered the room and screamed: "Now I've got you!"

Shoots Physician in Back.
As the madman aimed the gun, Dr. Gorse tried to swing around in his chair, but both barrels were discharged and he fell, shot in the back, and died instantly.

The insane man turned and ran from the house. As he passed the home of Frank Henderson he aimed the gun at the windows and snapped the triggers. The Hendersons telephoned the Aqueduct police at Vailsburg, and twenty-five men were sent on the trail of the maniac. Automobiles came racing toward Newburgh, saying they had been held up by a man with a shotgun.

Beaten by Wagon Driver.
The driver of a fish wagon was held up. When he saw the gun was not loaded he leaped from his wagon and beat Gorse with his whip till the latter fled to the woods. There Policeman Lowe captured him after a hard fight. Gorse was bound and placed in an automobile.

OXFORD, England, Oct. 11.—The Prince of Wales began his university career today. For year he will remain at Magdalen College here, living, as far as royalty can, an ordinary freshman's life.

King George wanted his son to "run loose," but the Queen insisted on close chaperonage by a tutor. Except for golf, his highness will be debuffed from sports. Her majesty feared he might get hurt if he played rougher games.

PARK VIEW SCHOOL TO BE RECOMMENDED

Commissioners Want Building on Site Now Owned at Newton and Warder Streets.

The Commissioners, it was learned today, will include in their estimates an item for a sixteen-room school building to be erected on a site already owned by the District at Newton and Warder streets, Park View. Provision for an eight-room building was included in the estimates last year but Congress failed to make the appropriation. In view of the rapid growth of the suburb it is the opinion of the Commissioners that a sixteen-room building is now needed.

The number of children of school age in Park View, according to a census taken by the Park View Citizens' Association, is 500. Inspection will be made by the Commissioners within the next few days of the new colored manual training school in Q street between North Capitol and First streets. The building contains eight rooms and cost $40,000. It is now being used for school work.

WOMEN FAINT WHEN STREET CARS CRASH

Motorman Injured and Passengers
Bruised in Northwest Collision.

Passengers on both cars narrowly escaped injury last evening, when a Columbia road car crashed the rear end of a Georgetown car at Fourteenth street and New York avenue. Traffic was tied up for more than an hour.

The accident caused much excitement. The Georgetown car was about half filled with passengers, and there were a number of passengers on the other car. Several women fainted and there was a small panic among the passengers for a few minutes. A crowd of several thousand persons soon gathered.

The Georgetown car was knocked off the tracks and Motorman John J. Wehagen was hurt about the head and men. He was treated at the Casualty Hospital. Although several of the passengers were badly shaken up and bruised, they declined hospital treatment.

UNION OF LABORING CLASSES ASKED FOR BY ENGLISH LEADER

J. Keir Hardie Has Issue
Taken Up By President
Sam Gompers.

Advocating the alliance of interests between the Socialists and the labor unionists, J. Keir Hardie, leader of the labor party in the English parliament, addressed a banquet of Socialists and labor men at the Fritz Reuter Hotel last evening. Issue with him was taken by President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, who said, in a brief speech, that conditions in the United States were different from what they were in England, and that Socialism was not needed here.

"There still exists in the United States," said the aged labor leader, who bears a close resemblance to Secretary Wilson, "friction between Socialism and trades unionism. These movements are essentially the same, as they are both workingmen's movements." He said he thought his presence and efforts in America might have some influence in breaking down the barrier which keeps the two movements apart. He argued that going into politics would greatly help the trades unionist movement, as it had done in England. Mr. Hardie, a good natured, good looking man, president of the American Federation of Labor, who was present, as being opposed to the merger of the two forces.

"Don't be split up and divided," urged Mr. Hardie. "Way lies up with the old parties, of which there is the Republican, the Democratic, and the Bull Moose, but in reality only one, with three leaders, and all working for the interest of the capitalist classes. Labor will lose whoever wins. The only way to win for labor is to vote the Socialist ticket, and make its total vote as big as possible. Capital will become alarmed, and grant the demands of labor when there is a big Socialist vote."

T. V. Powderly, chief of the Bureau of Information of the Department of Commerce and Labor, assailed the Industrial Workers of the World, and William M. Coleman made a plea for Socialism, and Otto Holder paid an eloquent tribute to Mr. Hardie.
